

Aplomb

“Life is what happens, when all your treasured plans fail”.

Wearing ‘limitation and failure’, with as much grace and acceptance as triumphant overcoming” is how you learn to be a thing in and of itself, the entire point of existence.

Nietzsche and the Stoics call this 'Amor Fati' and so it is (called ‘the love of fate’).

But they missed the why of it.

When UNBOUND AWARENESS learns to play any movie character whatsoever, then the work of self-knowing is complete.

Not transcendence.

Not victimhood.

Aplomb.

One day I awake, and I am a worm.

One day I awake, and I am the highest of deities.

It is not that I am a worm, or a deity that is of consequence,

But that I awake in all these many forms.

This is the ‘true understanding’ of “Little Red Wagon Theory”.

Kevin Cann
Public Domain

4/18/2025