

Why Waiting for God or Jesus Just Traps you in Suffering

The Simple Version

My friend and brother, it occurred to me when I woke up this morning, that you don't understand the three single most obvious things about PS.

I was relatively astonished that you were waiting for some ancient disinformation to save you.

AWARENESS is the very mind of God, if you want to look at it in that way.

POTENTIALITY is the very body of God, if you want to look at it that way.

CONSCIOUSNESS is the very imagination of God, if you want to look at it that way, in both its broken and not broken forms (Fractured and Primordial Consciousness).

Once you realize that you ARE THESE ATTRIBUTES, there is no god or Jesus to come rescue you.

You are the very thing, that you are waiting for to rescue you.

A Gnostic Amplification

All the mania about 'beings' is the Chinese finger trap.

Whether the beings be some religious figure, or some other archetype.

Our own concepts trap us.

This is what the little red wagon story means too of course. ***

Now Gnosticism also has a plethora of beings, and a Pleroma (it's means 'fullness) of being, but the ultimate goal of Gnosticism, at least according to some or (most?) of the traditions is for the angelification of humans.

Well PS takes out the middle man, who always skims off the top, and who is just a creation of the imagination anyway, and reveals that there is a state higher than angelification and it's the original and most natural state.

It is in fact the desire for angelification which is the white crystal prison, a later prison phase like PKD's black iron prison, or the prison-like world concept framework of the demiurge archons, which PS doesn't use either, though PS nods to such archetypes actually existing.

Now here's a tiny Olive twig (it's not big enough to be a branch), but within TIME and limitation it can FEEL LIKE some LOGOS being is coming to rescue you, but in fact, if that happens, it's just yourself.

Eventually you catch on and have a good laugh at your own expense.

* There were two kingdoms at war, with a road connecting the two kingdoms, and gate guards at the border of each country.*

One day and for many days, a little boy was seen hauling a little red wagon full of interesting contents.

One day it was boxes. One day it was bricks. One day it was straw.

Every day, the 'enemy guards' were certain that the little boy was smuggling contraband across the border, so each day they vigorously tore through all the contents of the wagon, ever sure they would catch him in the act of espionage.

On the final day, after a particularly long search, the little boy was allowed to continue and as he crossed the border and went up a small hill, he stopped, with a big 'shit eating grin' on his face and said, "You were right! I was smuggling this entire time!"

The guards said, "What! What! were you smuggling?" Were there hidden compartments? what was your technology or magic? What? What? You were smuggling, what?

The little boy smiled every so wide and shouted back "Little red wagons!"

Why Waiting for God or Jesus Just Traps you in Suffering

AWARENESS hauls the wagon, the wagon is POTENTIALITY, the contents of the wagon are temporary play objects within POTENTIALITY, ever changing, as wagons are designed to haul contents of various kinds, and the boy is an artifact of AWARENESS and POTENTIALITY both. He channels AWARENESS and also feeds back to it, with his comments about the contents of wagons and what fun he has playing with them.
